One of the most influential novels of the nineteenth century, Fyodor Dostoevsky's Crime and Punishment tells the tragic story of Raskolnikov, a talented former student whose warped philosophical outlook drives him to commit murder. Surprised by his sense of guilt and terrified of the consequences of his actions, Raskolnikov wanders through the slums of pre-revolutionary St. Petersburg, trying to escape the ever-suspicious Porfiry, the official investigating the crime. Through the moral guidance of Sonia, a destitute but pious woman driven to prostitution to support her family, Raskolnikov works through his conflicted sense of what is both moral and just, enabling him to face the depravity of his actions. Imbued with suspense, intrigue, and a dark pathos, Fyodor Dostoevsky's novel remains a deeply compelling consideration of the human psyche.

Exeunt Murderers Anthony Boucher, 1983. Boucher, a Catholic writer with catholic interests and enthusiasms, wrote short mysteries delving into religion, opera, football, politics, movies, true crime, record collecting, and an abundance of good food and wine, along with clues and puzzles and deductions. Francis M. Nevins Jr. from his Introduction: Most Boucher stories feature brilliant amateur detectives; these are tales of ratiocination in which a splendid, quirky intellectual assembles clues and solves mysteries almost always in time to stop further violence, often without leaving the native habitat to visit the scene of the crime. The first part of this book, An Ennead of Nobles, contains nine stories exhibiting the deductive powers of Nick Noble. Lieutenant MacDonald explained about Nick Noble: "No body knows where he lives or what he lives on. All we know is that we can find him at a little joint on North Main drinking cheap sherry by the water glass. Sherry's all that life has left him that and the ability to make the toughest problem come crystal clear The second section Conundrums for the Cloister shows the vast reasoning power and deep human understanding of Sister Ursula whose early ill health forced her from a police career into a nunnery Quiet simple human with the unobtrusive but intense inner glow of the devotional life she is the nun variant of G K Chesterton's immortal Father Brown Jeux de Meurtre the third section contains nonseries stories some narrated by the cops and amateurs who solve the puzzle some even by the murderers themselves
