The Adaptable Man

Robert Hunter, Charles Morris

The Adaptable Man:

The Adaptable Man Janet Frame, 1965 Beneath the seemingly tranquil surface of an old English village lie murder incest and mystery Alwyn Maude a handsome young man commits murder for no particular reason other than to kill The senselessness of Alwyn s crime is contrasted with the antiquated ways of his father and uncle The tensions between past and present are explored and the shortcomings of both exposed Copyright Libri GmbH All rights reserved The Adaptable Man Janet Frame, 1965 The Unharnessed World Cindy Gabrielle, 2015-06-18 Though New Zealand author Janet Frame 1924-2004 lived at a time of growing dissatisfaction with European cultural models and though her auto biography fiction and letters all testify to the fact that a direct encounter between herself and Buddhism occurred her work has so far never been examined from the vantage point of its indebtedness to Buddhism It is of the utmost significance however that a Buddhist navigation of Frame s texts should shed fresh light on large segments of the Framean corpus which have tended to remain obdurately mysterious This includes passages centering on such themes as the existence of a non dual world or a character s sudden embrace of a non ego like self Of equal significance is the conclusion one then draws that this unharnessed world which human beings are often unable to embrace has always been right under their nose for whenever the aspect of the intellect that filters perceptions into mutually excluding categories fails to function he or she finds a place of subjective arrival in and sees this supposedly unknowable beyond Thus possibly against the grain of mainstream criticism this study argues that Janet Frame constantly seeks ways through which the infinite and the Other can be approached though not corrupted by the perceiving self and that she found in the Buddhist epistemology a pathway towards evoking such alterity

Metafiction and the Postwar Novel Andrew Dean, 2021 Metafiction and the Postwar Novel is a full length reassessment of one of the definitive literary forms of the postwar period sometimes known as postmodern metafiction In the place of large scale theorizing this book centres on the intimacies of writing situations metafiction as it responds to readers literary reception and earlier works in a career Manifold Utopia Marc Delrez, 2021-10-01 This study of Janet Frame s fiction addresses with unusual directness the Utopian momentum that underpins her concern with fundamental social issues traditionally highlighted in existing criticism of her work The idea behind this book is that Frame s critique of society while it is offered for its own sake on one level should not lead us to neglect the author s more speculative interest in an alternative conception of the human person Her engagement in a species of experimental portraiture proves elusive though owing to an indirectness of approach that usually takes the form of thematic circumscription rather than explicit representation For example the figure of the mute child recurrent in her work may well testify to a concern with the plight of the mentally ill but on another level it also points to an envelope of intractable experience which it is the artist s task to penetrate and explain Such aspiration is inseparable from the search for a new medium of expression felt to be necessary if one is to meet the challenge of apprehending the scope of pioneering knowledge This close reading of the novels reveals that the alternative dimension of experience to be found in Frame's novels is characterized by an intact capacity for remembering or for imaginatively re-creating eclipsed aspects of the present. Frame's view of Utopia thus turns out to be manifold: it is existential and ontological, linguistic and epistemological, but also historical and political. An unravelling of these intertwined strains then serves to clarify the complex question of Frame's post-colonial sensibility, which cannot be said to rely on a sense of rigid identity, whether national or otherwise.

In Janet Frame: Semiotics and Biosemiotics in Her Early Fiction, Paul Matthew St Pierre exploits the linguistic discipline of semiotics and the neurobiological discipline of biosemiotics to propose an original and dynamic reading of the first four works of fiction by New Zealand writer Janet Frame: 1924 The Lagoon, 1951 Owls Do Cry, 1957 Faces in the Water, 1961 and The Edge of the Alphabet, 1962. Opposing the prevailing reading of Frame's early fiction as autobiographical, deriving from her medical history, he argues her books are singular evocations of her astonishing imagination. His purpose is to fix this historical record and provide an alternative model for interpreting one of the 20th century's most stylistically demanding and rewarding writers. Semiotics and biosemiotics are his means for unlocking the early fiction and her later works to a polemical analysis focusing on language, sign, transmissions, writing, the body, and the biosemiotic self.

In The Lagoon, Owls Do Cry, Faces in the Water, and The Edge of the Alphabet, Frame produced what St Pierre interprets as an original semiotic and biosemiotic modeling system that she applied throughout her oeuvre of twenty books comprising eight story collections, seven novels, a book of poetry, a children's novel, and three volumes of autobiography. Using this modeling system, she designed her fiction as a visual-verbal field consisting of still and moving images generated in the imagination, located in the brains and central nervous systems of her narrators, characters, and readers, and primarily of the author herself. The author discusses the significations of:

1. Frame's image signs in water, glass, photographs, film, membranes, skin, and clothing.
2. her primary sign repertoire of objects, language, and human persons in the figures of blood, skin, and sun.
3. her body signs, including those generated in the circulatory and neurological systems of all human organisms as biosemiotic living systems.

Woman -- Through a Man's Eyeglass, Malcolm Charles Salaman, 1892 Church Missionary Intelligencer and Record, 1898 A Rich Man's Relatives, Robert Cleland, 1885 Church Missionary Intelligencer, 1898 Course in Foreign Trade, Business Training Corporation, 1920 Association Men, 1898 The Frame Function, Jan Cronin, 2013-10-01

From Owls do Cry to The Carpathians, the novels of Janet Frame have challenged our understanding of what fiction does. The Frame Function is a guide for those who are intrigued, stimulated, sometimes baffled, by Frame's powerful novels. In The Frame Function, Jan Cronin traces the operation of a prescriptive authorial presence within the novels to offer an engaging inside-out guide to a great writer's work. Drawing on Frame's personal and professional correspondence and the dynamic between that Frame and the various Frames of the novels, Cronin explores key issues: Frame's relationship with her readers, the nature of the difficulty the novels present, and the questions of intentionality. Frame's work forces us to address Each chapter offers readers a tour of one or more Frame novels how they work how Frame writes and the impact these fundamentals have on readers interpreting and engaging with her work Readers of Frame s books frequently sense the presence of some kind of puzzle to be solved but can t quite distil its parameters The Frame Function takes as its starting point this capacity of Frame s texts to lure the reader into looking for solutions while simultaneously deterring such behaviour In crafting a portrait of Frame s compositional processes Cronin provides new insights into the underlying relationship between prescriptiveness and elusiveness in Frame s work
