Three Rings:

The Archer's Register, 1864 Unlocking the Brain Georg Northoff, 2014 What makes our brain a brain This is the central question posited in Unlocking the Brain By providing a fascinating venture into different territories of neuroscience psychiatry and philosophy the author takes a novel exploration of the brain's resting state in the context of the neural code and its ability to yield consciousness

What God Kept for Himself Umberto Grassi, 2026-02-17 A revelatory account of sexual nonconformity and radical religious dissent in Renaissance Italy drawing on never before studied Inquisition trials Between the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries a series of highly controversial Inquisition trials took place throughout the Italian peninsula The defendants were all accused of the same heresy claiming that Adam and Eve's original sin had been committing sodomy a celestial pleasure reserved for God alone Such claims were not merely subversive sexual innuendo Rather they were the most radical expressions of a much broader critique one that not only targeted repressive sexual taboos but also denounced the corruption of the Church questioned the authority of the pope and suggested that organized religion itself was a hoax designed to maintain elite power As Umberto Grassi shows these dissenters' beliefs about sexual freedom came to play a crucial role in the development of skeptical and atheistic positions Many of the accused argued that by violating God's exclusive right to engage in sodomy Adam and Eve dared to make themselves like gods This view which led to charges of atheism radicalized a more widely held belief that the ruling classes banned sodomy to prevent the masses from enjoying it In turn such heresies fueled indictments of Christian morality as an all too human invention whose purpose was to reinforce a social order in which the ruling classes controlled both sexuality and religious truth Tracing a radical tradition of thought on trial What God Kept for Himself establishes the firm relationship between sexual nonconformity and religious dissent in the early modern Mediterranean world
