to take on the task of childrearing alone After looking at recent research on these and other problems Don Browning suggests that the cure for modern marital disruption entails reforming and reconstructing the institution of marriage while also nurturing relevant forms of social support Yet the effort to initiate a world marriage revival requires a complex cultural work and Browning explores the key contributions that the religions of the world must make for such an effort to be successful

Chinese Marriages in Transition Xiaoling Shu,Jingjing Chen,2023-09-15 Outdated models of Chinese gender roles marriage and family transitions portray these changes as streamlined and unidirectional from traditional to modern public to private collective to individual Chinese Marriages in Transition documents the complex nuanced and multidirectional nature of these cultural transformations Using complex and large scale historical national data as well as comprehensive data from multiple countries Xiaoling Shu and Jingjing Chen demonstrate that while the second demographic transition is unfolding in many advanced Western societies it is not necessarily a normative form of societal transition Working instead from a framework of new familism Shu and Chen show that Chinese new familism consists of both old and new values including the persistence of some traditional beliefs and practices accompanied by a transition to modern perceptions of gender and adaption to some modern forms of family formation This book is freely available in an open access edition thanks to TOME Toward an Open Monograph Ecosystem a collaboration of the Association of American Universities the Association of University Presses and the Association of Research Libraries and the generous support of the University of California Davis Learn more at the TOME website available at openmonographs.org Download the open access book here

Larmon, 1975 Revitalizing the Institution of Marriage for the Twenty-First Century Alan J. Hawkins, Lynn D. Wardle, David Orgon Coolidge, 2002-01-30 As divorce rates in the United States reach alarming levels the institution of marriage receives more and more criticism as an unrealistic endeavor However the contributors to this volume view marriage as a vital social institution not merely one kind of intimate relationship They argue for stronger support through legal and policy reform in order to strengthen for the benefit of individuals communities and the nation The contributors address hot button issues such as same sex marriage effects of divorce on children and the role of fathers in addition to issues such as the permanence of marriage covenant marriage and the role of religion in marriage This work brings together the work of respected legal scholars and social scientists who articulate why we should care about strengthening the institution of marriage what we can do and what challenges we face Despite dramatic social change marriage remains a critical social institution that promotes individual family and community well being The contributors to this book believe that marriage deserves our best efforts to revitalize it instead of a conscious agenda of benign neglect Here assembled in one place is a clear pro marriage research and policy agenda aimed at revitalizing this institution based on principles of the best interests of children husbands and wives and society at large Contributors from both the social sciences and legal studies illuminate critical issues from a variety of important perspectives providing a comprehensive and respectful treatment of a timely and often divisive subject The Changing Family Mark Hutter, 1998 Previous editions of this book have been at the forefront of changes in sociology's perspectives and views. No different is this third edition as it examines the family through a feminist perspective, addresses diversity and multiculturalism, and reflects upon the globalization of sociology. This updated edition analyzes the family life cycle from an historical and cross-cultural perspective. The issues of race, class, gender, and ethnicity are incorporated into the theoretical framework. Global examples are used to illustrate the diversity of American family dynamics. The book also explains how political and economic changes such as industrialization and urbanization affect the structure and dynamics of the family.

Dynamics of Fertility and Partnership in Europe United Nations Population Fund, 2002. This publication is a product of the Fertility and Family Survey (FFS) project, which was conducted between 1988 and 1999 by the Population Activities Unit (PAU) of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) with financial support from the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA). The objectives of the project were: 1) to conduct comparable Fertility and Family Surveys in UNECE member countries; 2) to create and archive FFS Standard Recode Files (SRFs); 3) to prepare FFS Standard Country Reports (SCRs); 4) to carry out a program of cross-country comparative research. The FFS Working Group organized an end-of-project conference; the FFS Flagship Conference became an occasion for many researchers to present their findings of comparative analyses based on FFS data, in particular those studying partnership and fertility behavior. Volume one presents selected contributions to the FFS Flagship Conference solicited by the Organising Committee of the Conference. The second volume presents contributions received in response to a call for papers issued by the Organising Committee.
