Van Leeuwen, Helen Searing, 2000-02 Although others have written eloquently on the relationship of water to built form until now no one has investigated the swimming pool as a quintessentially modern and American space reflecting America's infatuation with hygiene skin and recreation In The Springboard in the Pond Thomas van Leeuwen looks at a familiar hole the domestic swimming pool and discovers an icon indispensable to the reading of twentieth century modernism At one level the book is a rereading of modern architecture that will leave that story permanently altered At another level it is the story of the origin and evolution of the private swimming pool as a building type and cultural artifact And at still another level it is a material philosophy of water Van Leeuwen explores the human relationship to water from a variety of viewpoints social religious artistic sexual psychological technical and above all architectural
