The Structure of Protection in Developing Countries Bela A. Balassa,1971 The Structure of Protection in Developing Countries Edward Marcus,1971 The Structure of Protection in Developing Countries Bela Balassa,1971 Provides criteria for evaluating policies protection and applies the criteria to the case of Brazil Chile Mexico Malaysia Pakistan Philippines Norway The Structure of Protection in the Industrial Countries and Its Effects on the Exports of Processed Goods from Developing Countries ,1968 Independent Power Projects in Developing Countries Henrik M. Inadomi,2010-01-01 For developing countries a stable and secure supply of electricity is crucial for development and for their populations well being Since the early 1990s the main mechanism for constructing power generation facilities in developing countries has been the independent power project IPP model where a foreign investor enters into long term investment contracts with the national utility This model has succeeded in attracting investment but raises complex regulatory and contractual challenges in addition to public concerns This book drawing on project contracts the author s interview sources case law and literature analyzes in detail the legal investment protection used by IPP investors to ensure sufficient returns and protect their contracted revenue stream The author examines how the model s corporate financial structure interlocks with strong contractual rights and with a number of measures used to improve the host country s creditworthiness in the short and long term including investment guarantees The second part of the book identifies that the IPP model normally leads to six main consequences for the host developing country The IPP model has led to private investment which has increases reliability modernization and introduced private standards It contains an intrinsic structural weakness in times of economic downturns It has shown a tendency to lead to overinvestment in generation capacity It has shown a tendency to lead to expensive and suboptimal solutions regarding choice of design and technology The model and its institutional surroundings contains insufficient disincentives against moral hazard and exploitative behavior including corruption and The IPP model does not facilitate a further development of the host country s power sector The author argues that these consequences for development can be improved without detrimentally compromising the private sector s willingness to continue to invest While pursuing this analysis the author also explores such issues as the following the web of parties and contracts constituting the IPP model including the model s risk allocation an analysis of political risk including to what extent foreign investors also are protected against commercial and credit risks the competing needs of predictability and flexibility in long term contracts how investment arbitration tribunals have reacted both to the change in macroeconomic circumstances caused by the East Asian Crisis of 1997 98 and to numerable and credible allegations of corruption during procurement identification of factors reducing or increasing the IPP model s tendency to fail during severe economic recessions Securing Critical Infrastructures and Critical Control Systems: Approaches for Threat Protection Laing, Christopher,Badii, Atta,Vickers, Paul,2012-12-31 The increased use of technology is necessary in order for industrial control systems to maintain and monitor industrial infrastructural or environmental processes The need to secure and identify threats to the system is equally critical Securing Critical Infrastructures and Critical Control Systems Approaches for Threat Protection provides a full and detailed understanding of the vulnerabilities and security threats that exist within an industrial control system This collection of research defines and analyzes the technical procedural and managerial responses to securing these systems Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries M. Ataman Aksoy, John C.

Beghin, 2004-11-01 Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries presents research findings based on a series of commodity studies of significant economic importance to developing countries The book sets the stage with background chapters and investigations of cross cutting issues It then describes trade and domestic policy regimes affecting agricultural and food markets and assesses the resulting patterns of production and trade The book continues with an analysis of product standards and costs of compliance and their effects on agricultural and food trade The book also investigates the impact of preferences given to selected countries and their effectiveness then reviews the evidence on the attempts to decouple agricultural support from agricultural output The last background chapter explores the robustness of the global gains of multilateral agricultural and food trade liberalization Given this context the book presents detailed commodity studies for coffee cotton dairy fruits and vegetables groundnuts rice seafood products sugar and wheat These markets feature distorted policy regimes among industrial or middle income countries The studies analyze current policy regimes in key producing and consuming countries document the magnitude of these distortions and estimate the distributional impacts winners and losers of trade and domestic policy reforms By bringing the key issues and findings together in one place Global Agricultural Trade and Developing Countries aids policy makers and researchers both in their approach to global negotiations and in evaluating their domestic policies on agriculture The book also complements the recently published Agriculture and the WTO which focuses primarily on the agricultural issues within the context of the WTO negotiations Critical Infrastructure Protection
