A woman with long brown hair is pointing her right index finger at a white line graph. The graph is drawn on a dark, textured background that resembles a chalkboard. The graph starts with a steep upward slope, followed by a downward slope, then another upward slope, and finally a steep upward arrow pointing towards the top right corner. The woman is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile.

How to Think More Effectively The School of Life, 2020-01-23 A guide to identifying, nurturing, and growing our insight and creativity for more effective thinking. We know that our minds are capable of great things because every now and then they come out with a very brilliant idea or two. However, our minds are also tantalizingly unpredictable, spending worryingly large stretches of time idling or distracting themselves. This is a book about how to optimise these beautiful yet fitful instruments so that they can more regularly and generously produce the sort of insights and ideas we need to fulfil our potential and achieve the contentment we deserve. We learn among other things how to grasp fragile and flighty thoughts before they disappear through anxiety and fear, at what times of day to try to work, and for how long; how to make use of our boredom and instincts; and how to overcome timid and predictable approaches to the largest problems.
