The Processing Of Tense:

The Processing of Tense M.W. Dickey, 2013-06-29 This work is a psycho linguistic investigation of the processing of tense more specifically the English past tense When it is interpreted how it is interpreted and what it is interpreted with respect to While there has been a great deal of attention paid to tense in the syntax and semantics literature little work has been done on the details of the psychological processing of this category The chief value and contribution of this book is to present a richly detailed in depth study of the processing of tense in adult comprehension tasks providing an excellent model of how to conceive of detailed experimental work against a background of sophisticated deep and broad linguistic theory The discussion of the representational issues is deep and informative and is directly brought to bear on experimental issues The experiments aim to evaluate whether a hypothesis called Parsimony a highly plausible notion that has received tentative experimental support in other domains is the chief controlling feature of the interpretation of tense The experimental results presented quite consistently do not confirm the apparent predictions made by Parsimony but rather tend to be more consistent with another view which Parsimony is aimed at opposing which holds that actual structural factors in the syntax of a sentence are a decisive factor Along the way the author considers a number of other plausible hypotheses as the experimental results are presented but evaluating Parsimony remains the chief organizing principle of the line of research presented here

Input Processing and Grammar Instruction in Second Language Acquisition Bill VanPatten, 1996 This book provides an alternative to the grammar debate in second language acquisition theory and teaching Accepting that language acquisition is at least partially input dependent the author asks how grammatical form is processed in the input by second language learners and is it possible to assist this in ways that help the learner to create richer grammatical intake He answers these questions and explains why traditional paradigms are not psycholinguistically motivated Drawing on research from both first and second language acquisition he outlines a model for input processing in second language acquisition that helps to account for how learners construct grammatical systems He then uses this model to motivate processing instruction a type of grammar instruction in which learners are engaged in making form meaning connections during particular input activities
