The Psychic Life Of Power:

The Psychic Life of Power Judith Butler, 1997 Judith Butler's new book considers the way in which psychic life is generated by the social operation of power and how that social operation of power is concealed and fortified by the psyche that it produces. It combines social theory, philosophy, and psychoanalysis in novel ways and offers a more sustained analysis of the theory of subject formation implicit in her previous books.

The Psychic Life of Power Judith Butler, 2006 The Psychic Life of Power Judith Butler, 2022 As a form of power, subjection is paradoxical. To be dominated by a power external to oneself is a familiar and agonizing form power takes. To find however that what one is one's very formation as a subject is dependent upon that very power is quite another. If following Foucault we understand power as forming the subject as well, it provides the very condition of its existence and the trajectory of its desire. Power is not simply what we depend on for our existence but that which forms reflexivity as well. Drawing upon Hegel, Nietzsche, Freud, Foucault, and Althusser, this challenging and lucid work offers a theory of subject formation that illuminates as ambivalent the psychic effects of social power. If we take Hegel and Nietzsche seriously, then the inner life of consciousness and indeed of conscience not only is fabricated by power but becomes one of the ways in which power is anchored in subjectivity. The author considers the way in which psychic life is generated by the social operation of power and how that social operation of power is concealed and fortified by the psyche that it produces. Power is no longer understood to be internalized by an existing subject but the subject is spawned as an ambivalent effect of power, one that is staged through the operation of conscience. To claim that power fabricates the psyche is also to claim that there is a fictional and fabricated quality to the psyche. The figure of a psyche that turns against itself is crucial to this study and offers an alternative to describing power as internalized. Although most readers of Foucault eschew psychoanalytic theory and most thinkers of the psyche eschew Foucault, the author seeks to theorize this ambivalent relation between the social and the psychic as one of the most dynamic and difficult effects of power. This work combines social theory, philosophy, and psychoanalysis in novel ways, offering a more sustained analysis of the theory of subject formation implicit in such other works of the author as Bodies That Matter: On the Discursive Limits of Sex and Gender, Trouble Feminism and the Subversion of Identity.

Subjective Agency and Poststructuralism Cillian Ó Fathaigh, Gavin Rae, 2024-12-02 Poststructuralism has long been acknowledged to offer a radical critique of the foundational subject as a precursor to affirming a constituted subject. Its detractors have however held that the resultant position cannot offer a coherent account of agency, strong version or alternatively that while it may be able to account for non-subjective agency, it is unable to develop a coherent explanation for subjective agency, weak version. Somewhat strangely, this issue has been largely ignored by commentators predisposed to poststructuralist thought. In contrast, this volume focuses on the works of Judith Butler, Cornelius Castoriadis, Gilles Deleuze, Jacques Derrida, Michel Foucault, Luce Irigaray, Jacques Lacan, and Catherine Malabou to show that the question of the subject is a key one for many poststructuralist thinkers that they are aware of the problematic status of agency that arises from their decentering of the foundational subject and that they offer heterogeneous responses to it Subjective Agency and Poststructuralism will therefore be an invaluable resource for researchers and advanced students interested in philosophy political theory psychoanalysis critical theory history of ideas feminist theory and cultural studies
