

UNDERSTANDING ALLERGIES

What Is An Allergy?

An allergy is an overreaction or hypersensitivity of the body's immune system to normally harmless substances, called allergens. An allergic reaction occurs when the body's immune system responds to an allergen as if the substance were disease-causing. Subsequent responses to this substance can result in physical symptoms that range from mild to severe.

Who Gets Allergies?

The tendency to develop allergies is thought to be inherited, because they commonly develop in those who have a family history of allergies. It is possible for anyone to develop allergies at any age. Allergies often occur in clusters and affect both children and adults. This could mean allergen exposure to people with no family history or factors associated in those with a family history.

What Are Common Allergens?

Allergens can enter the body in a number of different ways, including inhaling pollen, drinking tap water for years, and contact with the skin or eyes. Common allergens include pollen, mold, animal hair or dander, dust mites, certain medications like aspirin, penicillin, and certain foods like peanuts, grains, eggs, milk, wheat, and soybeans.

Anaphylaxis: An Allergic Emergency

Anaphylaxis is a life-threatening reaction. The onset of this reaction may occur within minutes or minutes of exposure. Symptoms can include a rash with some redness of the face, hives, swollen lips and tongue, and swelling of the throat, which may result in difficulty breathing. Swelling can stop and the body may stop reacting, but medication to soothe inflammation, lower blood pressure and death can result. Anaphylaxis is the most severe allergic reaction and is potentially fatal. Medication such as antihistamines can be used to relieve symptoms, but only other allergens. Anaphylaxis is not a common reaction and can be prevented with proper medication and the help of a physician.

Managing Allergies

The first step in managing allergies is to identify the type of reaction you are having, whether it is an acute, chronic, or delayed reaction. Next, try to identify the trigger in the reaction that led to the symptoms. Ask yourself a few questions:

- Did you eat anything new?
- Did you use any new medicine?
- Did you get a new pet?
- Did you go to a new place?
- Did you get a new job?
- Did you get a new car?
- Did you get a new house?

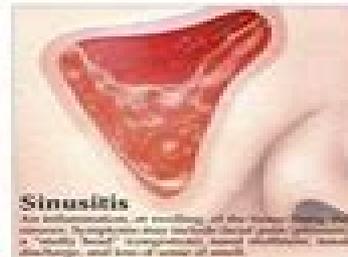

A physician can perform skin or blood allergy tests with a variety of common allergens. Once the allergen has been identified, manage your allergies by following some tips:

- Avoid allergen after meals.
- Use a dehumidifier.
- Avoid allergen after exercise.
- Use a dust mite cover.
- Use medication to prevent.
- Stop smoking.

Hay Fever (allergic rhinitis)

It is caused by an overreaction to pollen and other allergens. It affects the upper airway. Common symptoms include sneezing, itchy nose, itchy throat, and watery, itchy, swollen, and red eyes.

Sinusitis

An inflammation or swelling of the sinus cavity. Common symptoms include facial pain, pressure, a "stuffy nose", congestion, nasal discharge, and loss of sense of smell.

Eczema (atopic dermatitis)

A group of medical conditions that cause the skin to become inflamed or irritated. It causes itching and rashes of the skin characterized by lesions, scaling, and flaking.

Hives (urticaria)

An inflammation of the skin, eyes, and tongue. An allergic reaction to pollen, grass, and honey. An allergic reaction to the skin, or a result of the body's allergic reaction to certain allergens, or the substance itself.

Asthma

Affects the respiratory system, causing wheezing, coughing, and difficulty breathing. It is caused by an overreaction to an allergen. Common allergens that irritate include pollen, dust mites, and mold.

Contact Dermatitis

An inflammation of the skin caused by direct contact with an irritant or allergen. It causes redness, itching, swelling, or blistering of the skin.

Allergic Conjunctivitis

An inflammation of the conjunctiva, the tissue that lines the inner and outer surfaces of the eye. It is caused by an overreaction to an allergen. The eye becomes red, itchy, and watery.

Food Allergies

Symptoms include swelling of lips, throat, face, and tongue; rapid breathing; vomiting; abdominal cramps; hives; and skin rashes. Food allergens may be the following:

Drug Allergies

Certain medications can trigger allergic reactions ranging from mild rashes to life-threatening symptoms, which can affect any tissue or organ in the body.

Household Allergies

They often are environmental irritants that lead to hay fever and other symptoms. Many are completely avoidable, such as pollen, mold, dust, and pet dander. After there are symptoms for a reaction, find the potential types of allergens, and use a proper course of action.
